

A new way to connect...

The Phoenix Group is opening up new avenues for our clients and visitors to our website to connect with us and share our passion for designing and constructing truly outstanding buildings, inside and out.

We're happy to announce that we've launched our blog, A (Really) Great House (<http://reallygreathouse.blogspot.com>), where we share with you some interesting and useful information on our latest real estate projects, innovations in home design, smart ideas for island living and some of the latest trends in sophisticated home comforts.

So far on our blog, we've explored the possibilities of building on narrow lots and discussed how our Seagate homes are designed with generous living spaces and private outdoor areas on lots that are only 80' wide.

We've also discussed the marvels of the modern gas fire pit, which can add beauty, light and warmth to gardens, patios and decks. "These beautiful small fires can safely warm your feet as you sip sangrias on the deck, or you can roast marshmallows over a blazing fire encircled with granite or slate."

Sounds intriguing?

There's a lot more to this story, complete with pictures that speak a thousand words.

If you love the water, you'll be fascinated by our posting on pool trends, in particular the infinity pool, which is discussed in detail. We share with you some marvelous images of renowned infinity edge pools from across the globe.

You will also find information on our exciting Colliers beach home project, Sirocco, which is located in beautiful East End, Grand Cayman.

Of course, our blog would not be complete without your feedback. So we invite you to log on, read and send us your feedback. We look forward to sharing more with you.

Check out our blog at: <http://reallygreathouse.blogspot.com/>